But, two solar panels wired in series could, with an MPPT controller. But, to answer FM's question, MPPT controllers (not PWM controllers) will take the incoming voltage and transform it down to make the voltage the battery wants. Keep in mind though that 12V solar panels do NOT put out 12V, and 24V panels do NOT put out 24V.

For a 24V system, it suggests using 60V or 80V solar panels. A 24V system is described as suitable for powering a range of appliances and devices, with components including a 24V battery bank and a controller to regulate voltage and current. This system is seen as affordable and efficient for off-grid setups. On the other hand, a 48V system offers higher ...

Solar panels operate at a higher voltage than batteries can accept to make up for the transmission loss along the wires and to produce enough energy on a low sun day for the batteries to still charge efficiently. The charge controller takes care of that extra voltage so that the battery gets what it needs. This can be a bit confusing because panels are sold as 12V or 24V, ...
