avoid spending $600 on a battery replacement (my current uneducated guess is that replacing the battery will fix this issue), if anyone has any troubleshooting advice or a cheaper place to buy a battery I would greatly appreciate it.

With the same kind of information in my older batteries, how do you add them/search for them. Newer batteries have the CAT number for easy look up, but I can't seem to find the older batteries using the info on the bottom of them. Even using simple terms like "battery" doesn't yield any results. Any help would be appreciated.
