What temperature does a hot glue gun melt?

These glue guns melt glue sticks to around three-hundred- and eighty-degrees Fahrenheit. Hot glue guns are used on materials that cannot be easily damaged and need a strong bond. When the glue is really hot, you have time to move the pieces around and get them exactly where you want.

How does a cordless hot glue gun work?

A cordless hot glue gun is a tool that heats up glue sticks. Sticks of glue are inserted into the gun and a heating element melts the glue. After the glue had melted, you squeeze the trigger of the gun to extrude the glue. The glue stick is pushed further down into the gun, so the glue continues to provide a steady stream of melted glue.
